

Feng Shui Principles

The winds are mild

The sun is bright

The water is clear

The trees are lush

Everything is alive with vital energy or Chi

All people, places, and things surrounding you are alive with associations and memories you have about them.

All your possessions are subconsciously
"talking" to you all the time.

Everything is connected by Chi (or energy)

You are connected to everybody and everything surrounding you. Your relationships with your home, garden, neighbors, and community are important due to their proximity.

All aspects of your life, including your health, wealth, and general happiness are connected to each other, and directly affect each other all the time.

Chi

in everything is always changing

The one constancy in our world is change.
Movement produces change.

As you change, grow, and move through your life, it is important to change your environment to reflect who you are now.

There is a Chinese saying: "if you want change in your life, move 27 things in your house."

"First we shape our dwellings,
and then our dwellings shape us."

Winston Churchill

Feng Shui

is Good Design

Live with What You Love

Put Safety and Comfort First

Express and Organize Yourself

Live with What You Love

Living only with things you absolutely love!

Let it go of all else as soon as possible!

Your environment will transform itself into a place that truly nurtures and uplifts every aspect of your life!

Put Safety, Comfort & Function First

Choose items that have function, safety, and comfort, then allow beauty and symbolism to follow.

*Choose tables with rounded comers (no glass top tables w/o area rugs!)
and furniture that is comfortable.*

Express and Organize Yourself

Your vital Chi (energy) expands and strengthens the more you creatively express yourself.

Get rid of what doesn't say

“Welcome Home!”

(including all the clutter)

Yin/Yang

Opposites never exist in isolation.

Where there is Yin,
There is also Yang.

Qualities of yin/yang (light/dark) must be balanced within the environment.